'Coyote derby' to go on despite death threat

Controversy. Experts question practice of provincewide hunt with cash prizes

Despite threats of physical harm and social-media backlash, organizers of an annual coyote hunt say they're moving forward with this weekend's event, calling the objections simple misunderstandings.

The Alberta-wide DKD Coyote Tournament, planned for Saturday, challenges two-person teams to hunt coyotes throughout the province, awarding cash prizes to the teams with the most kills.

Paul, an organizer who asked that his last name not be published due to recent threats he's received — including one message saying he, himself, should be shot — said the day isn't a free-for-all, despite what some opponents allege.

"This is not a mass cull. This is not a mass slaying. We're not

Organizers of a coyote hunt plan to go ahead with the event this weekend despite social-media protests and a death threat against one of the organizers. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE running around, shooting on people's property," said Paul.

Last year, 13 coyotes were harvested by 23 participating teams.

While the numbers of animals killed may be small, Paul said, the tournament helps to protect farmers who have had their livestock threatened by the predators.

"We want hunters to hunt their home areas, where they are having issues," he said.

But Dr. Shelley Alexander, an assistant professor at the University of Calgary who's been researching coyotes for more than two decades, described that justification as scientifically suspect.

"When you remove a population like that, you don't create a long-term solution to conflict," Alexander said, adding that coyotes are "controlling other species we don't want around."

Alberta Environment and Sustainable Resource Development spokesman Duncan MacDonell said the department has fielded complaints about the coyote-hunting tournament but ultimately has little control over the annual practice.

"It involves a species that's more than plentiful in the province, that's considered an agricultural pest," he said, noting you don't need a tag to hunt coyotes.

The province doesn't even keep track of coyote populations, said MacDonell, making it difficult to know how many are killed every year.

That said, he stressed the department doesn't endorse the game and doesn't condone it as a population-management practice.

Alexander believes the complaints are a sign Albertans are changing their attitudes about the general "senseless elimination" of the species, a mindset she believes leads to thousands of coyotes being killed each year in the province.

A big deal. Scientist at U of A helps develop an unbeatable poker game

Scientists have taught a computer how to play unbeatable poker.

While the news may sadden the hearts of rec-room card sharps everywhere, the winners in this game are programmers trying to do everything from improve public security to help doctors treat patients with diabetes.

"We should be able to use these algorithms in any well-defined problem," said Michael Bowling, the University of Alberta computer scientist who co-authored a paper in the journal Science that details how the program for two-handed, fixed-bet Texas Hold 'Em can't do worse than break even.

Scientists in the field of game theory long ago taught computers to play games such as checkers and chess, but poker has remained elusive because it's a so-called "imperfect information" game. A player has to make decisions without knowing all the data, such as what the other player is holding.

"This game has been, historically, an important challenge problem," Bowling said. "Poker is one of the games that really motivated the whole founding of the field of game theory back in the '20s."

The breakthrough is unlikely to be of much use at anyone's Saturday night poker game, however.

"You have to memorize a 10-terabyte table of probabilities," said Bowling.

Pedestrian safety a concern on Whyte

Budget hurdles. Head of business association says he's not expecting city to put in signals at crosswalk any time soon

ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

More can be done to make Whyte Avenue safer for pedestrians, but the city will have to rethink how it views the street, said the head of the local business association.

On New Year's Day, a 63-year-old man was struck and killed on the avenue by a driver fleeing another collision and a 27-year-old man was killed in January 2014.

Murray Davidson, head of the Old Strathcona Business Association, said it's time for the city to recognize that the area isn't about cars.

"We're not just a major thoroughfare to go whizzing through with your vehicles.

"We're a walkable, pedestrian-friendly community," he said.

Davidson said after years of requests, the city has agreed to put a signalized crossing at Whyte Avenue and 102 Street, but he's not expecting to see it any time soon.

"It's on the priority list to get a signal in, but they have no budget and that's so frustrating, because someone is going to get smoked there," he said.

The city has agreed to put up lights at this crosswalk on Whyte Avenue, but there is no date for the installation.

RYAN TUMILTY/METRO

Davidson said he would like to see traffic slowed down on the avenue and pedestrians given more focus.

"The vehicles for the most part are driving through or delivering stuff," he said.

He said he also notices that drivers headed east tend to speed up once they pass Gateway Boulevard, but that's not where the area ends.

"The core extends now to 101 street, with all the new trendy businesses," he said.

Acting Sgt. Ian Smith, who works the Whyte Avenue beat, said enforcement can help, but because the area is a tourist spot, it's not a silver bullet.

"You have people come here from places where jaywalking doesn't exist," he said.

He said many of the collisions haven't involved any jaywalking and drivers need to stay aware.

"The last three I was at, pedestrians were in marked crosswalks, crossing with the right of way."

Local author takes on health and fitness myths in his book

'No magic diets.'

Fad-busting expert Tim Caulfield offers straightforward, science-based advice

In his first book, The Cure for Everything!, University of Alberta law professor Tim Caulfield debunked a lot of myths about health and fitness. Diet books, detoxes and cleanses? A waste of time and money, says the research director of the school's Health Law Institute. The same goes for the fitness gadgets on TV infomercials.

"People don't want to hear it — it's boring. But there are no magic diets. It's all about a sustained lifestyle — doing things you enjoy that fit into your everyday life," he said.

"For good health, don't smoke and stay out of the sun. Try to be active all day long and eat lots of fruits and vegetables, lean protein and whole grains."

In his new book, Is Gwyneth Paltrow Wrong About Everything?, Caulfield takes that same research-based, critical look at health and happiness through the lens of celebrity. He blasts actress Paltrow's promotion of expensive beauty products and diet advice as useless, but also examines why we, as a society, want to believe whatever a celebrity is touting.

"My son calls me the dream-crusher," Caulfield said. "We may not think celebrity culture has an impact on our lives, but it does influence us all. The core truths for health and wellness are simple, but people want to hear something else."

"Celebrity, fame, trying to look a certain way — will that make people happy? I talk about fantasy versus reality and enjoying the process — pursuing something just for the inherent value of the activity. I hope realizing that is liberating for people."

For 19 year-old NAIT student Becky Francis, her goal of losing weight is one of the most common — and most failed — of all resolutions. She said she plans to eat healthy and have a gym buddy to work out with for added motivation.

Man, convicted in girl's homicide at golf course, denied appeal

Alberta's top court has dismissed an appeal by a man convicted in the sex slaying of an Edmonton teenager on a golf course.

Michael Briscoe is serving a life sentence for sexual assault, kidnapping and first-degree murder in the death of 13-year-old Nina Courtepatte in 2005.

A group of people lured the girl from West Edmonton Mall to the golf course, where she was raped, stabbed and beaten to death.

Briscoe was initially acquitted of the charges after testifying that he did not know of the murder plan and his only involvement was to drive the car.

The Crown won an appeal and Briscoe was convicted following a second trial in 2012.

The trial judge ruled that Briscoe did not directly commit the acts, but assisted another man, Joseph Laboucan, in the crime.

The Alberta Court of Appeal unanimously agreed in its latest decision that Briscoe has no valid grounds for appeal.

Along with Laboucan, three other young people were also convicted in Nina's death.

Laboucan was further found guilty of first-degree murder in the death of Ellie-May Meyer. The prostitute, who was killed two days before Courtepatte, was found in a farmer's field east of Edmonton and police connected the two killings.

Briscoe was also charged in Meyer's death but acquitted.

Jasper Otis, 8, got immunized early this flu season, opting for an injection rather than nasal spray in October. Free flu shots are available to all Albertans six months of age and older. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO FILE

23 deaths so far this flu season

Health. Alberta sees 30 to 40 deaths in a typical season, AHS says

ROBSON FLETCHER
Metro in Calgary

Influenza has been confirmed in 23 people who died in Alberta this flu season, a death toll nearly three times as severe compared to the same time last year.

Nine of those deaths came in the Edmonton health zone, six in the Calgary zone, three in the south, three in the north, and two in the central zone, according to data published Thursday by Alberta Health Services.

At this time last year, AHS had confirmed influenza in eight deaths, but chief medical officer of health Dr. James Talbot said the higher toll so far this year is in part due to the flu season having started about two to three weeks earlier, and being "close to reaching its peak right now."

Overall, Talbot said, this is a "fairly ordinary" year for influenza rates.

So far this season, at least 1.171 million doses of flu vaccine have been administered in Alberta. Of those, 478,088 were in Calgary and 391,500 in Edmonton.

These numbers are likely underrepresented, AHS cautioned, as they don't include doses administered by non-public-health and non-AHS staff members past Nov. 30, due to "delays" in gathering all the data over the December holidays.

Last season, Alberta exhausted its entire supply of 1.16-million flu-vaccine doses and immunized 27 per cent of the population.

This season, the province purchased hundreds of thousands more doses and set a goal to immunize 45 per cent of Albertans.

So far, Talbot said, about 29 per cent of the population has been immunized, which is nearly a third more than at the same time last year, and the second-highest rate on record.

"There's still time to get your shot and there's lots of locations," he said.

Talbot said this season has seen a high prevalence of a mutated H3N2 influenza strain, a variant of the virus that the vaccine — prepared in large batches months ahead of flu season — is a "partial match" for.

That strain tends to hit older people particularly hard, compared to the H1N1 variant that was more common last year and had a greater affect on younger adults.

Sherwood Park. Ottawa man, 30, identified as homicide victim

An Ottawa man has been identified as the victim of a Dec. 30 homicide in Sherwood Park.

According to Strathcona County RCMP, 30-year-old Adrian Gregory was discovered shortly after 12:45 a.m. at an industrial area just east of Edmonton.

Police are asking members of the public who may have had contact with Gregory on the days leading up to his death to come forward. They are also calling on people who may have been driving near 34 Street between 84 Avenue and 92 Avenue on the evening of Dec. 29 to the early morning of Dec. 30 to contact them.

City's taxi associations are concerned about Uber's expansion into Edmonton

Edmonton cabbies want a stronger response from officials to Uber's entry into the city, including fines for drivers and an injunction against the company.

Balraj Manhas, president of the United Cabbies Association, said about 200 drivers will hold a peaceful protest outside city hall on Wednesday.

"We want action and the city is not taking action yet and so, drivers are worried," he said.

Edmonton Taxi Association president Jasbir Gill said

Uber

Uber launched in Edmonton in late December and initially offered its service for free, but have since started to charge.

the 900 drivers he represents want something done.

"Our main concern is that it is a bandit cab and it does not follow the law," he said.

He said so far Uber hasn't been a major player, but he is worried about its expansion. He said local drivers carry commercial insurance and have other costs that Uber drivers don't pay, making it a very uneven playing field.

Gill met with members of the mayor's staff on Thursday and said they feel the city understands their concerns.

He said right now they're not planning any steps, but if the city doesn't act they won't rule out a strike.

Place your bets. AGLC considers online gambling

Albertans may have to wait before they hit regulated slots online, say officials with the Alberta Gaming and Liquor Commission (AGLC).

On Thursday, the Ontario Lottery and Gaming Corporation launched PlayOLG.ca, which enables Ontario residents to gamble on games like blackjack and roulette with profits going back to the provincial government.

AGLC spokeswoman Jody Korchinski said the commission is examining the possibility of creating an online gaming portal in Alberta but wouldn't provide details on where they are in the process.

"No final decisions have been made, but this is something that has been actively under review and could be a good revenue opportunity for the Alberta Lottery Fund," she said.

Korchinski also wouldn't get into specifics about revenue projections or when a decision on an online gambling portal may be made but did say the AGLC is cognizant that online gambling is popular in the province.

"We're certainly aware that technology is changing," she said. "Player expectations are moving into that online and mobile front, and there is an expectation from consumers that this type of product be available for Alberta players."

While many Albertans are already gambling online, an online gaming portal maintained by the AGLC would mean profits would be used to support government and community initiatives. METRO

Winter festival to shake up how city enjoys the cold

Edmonton organizers hope to recreate the feeling of a Christmas market, such as this one in Frankfurt, for the Winter Cities Shake-Up Festival and Market on Jan. 30. CONTRIBUTED Edmonton organizers are hoping to bring a little European charm to the city centre and shake up the way Edmontonians enjoy winter.

To close out the upcoming Winter Cities Shake-Up conference on Jan. 30, Churchill Square will be transformed into a winter market, chock-full of activities to make the cold weather a little more bearable.

"When you go to any great city in the world, they're not great because people are doing cool things on the inside," said Sue Holdsworth, Winter City co-ordinator and event organizer. "It's all about what's happening on the street and in public spaces."

Just like the Christmas markets in Germany, the Shake-Up Festival will feature a market, entertainment and warm treats, including mulled wine and hot chocolate, along with a few activities to shake up people's perceptions of what can be done during the colder months, said Holdsworth.

Organizers hope to transform the stairs on the east side of the square into a snow slide. Festival-goers can warm up with an on-site hot-tub party.

"That's not something people typically think of doing in the wintertime," Holdsworth said. "It's actually completely opposite, so it's really turning things upside-down."

The market kicks off at noon and will run until 8 p.m.

Conversation-starter.
Tour aimed at easing out infill problems

RYAN TUMILTY
ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

With more infill projects likely coming to Edmonton, a group at the University of Alberta is hoping a tour can start a new conversation about the controversial developments.

The City Region Studies Centre at the university is hosting a tour on Jan. 24 of infill developments that will deal with some of the issues.

"We're not answering those questions, but we want to creatively think about them and talk about them," said Kevin Jones, the centre's director.

Jones said the centre has a mandate to work on issues like this, but with the tour, it is hoping to do something more dynamic than they have in the past.

"We thought around infill instead of doing a classic workshop or lecture we should do something more engaging and interesting," he said.

After going on the tour, participants will be asked to come back to the centre several days later to talk about what they saw and also talk about how infill can deal with larger problems.

Tegan Martin Drysdale, representing the Infill Developer's Association of Edmonton which is a partner in the event, said too often the Building inward

The city's target is to have 25 per cent of its future development come through infill projects in existing neighbourhoods.

debate around infill focuses on when the developments go badly.

"What's going to come out of it is that people are going to see some good examples of infill, which is going to create a different type of dialogue," she said.

She said with more development coming, it's important to stop looking at what's wrong with infill and focus more on what it can do for the city.

Reaction. Charlie Hebdo attack an assault on democracy, Harper says

A terrorist attack against a newspaper in Paris was an assault on democracy, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said Thursday, as he warned that jihadists are at war with anyone who values openness and tolerance.

Harper was speaking publicly for the first time since gunmen stormed the offices of the satirical newspaper Charlie Hebdo on Wednesday, killing 12 people.

"When a trio of hooded men struck at some of our most cherished democratic principles — freedom of expression, freedom of the press — they assaulted democracy everywhere," said Harper.

Police in France were searching for two brothers, while a third suspect has surrendered.

Canada at war with ISIL: Harper

Canada is at war with the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) group and will do what is necessary to eliminate the threat it poses, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said Thursday.

Harper's use of the word "war" is important because it carries specific, legal connotations and the government generally avoided using it during the long campaign against the Taliban in Afghanistan.

Underscored that the campaign against extremists in Iraq is a war sets up and reinforces Canada's responsibilities under international law, particularly when it comes to the treatment of any prisoners and in the protection of civilians.

From Bill Cosby to Jian Ghomeshi in 24 hours

Fallen from grace.
Ontario sees tainted entertainment legends face public scrutiny in less than a day

ROSEMARY WESTWOOD
Metro in Toronto

From one infamous sex-crime suspect to another, in less than 24 hours.

A defiant Bill Cosby soaked up roaring applause Wednesday at a southern Ontario theatre, despite three new allegations that bring the total against him to 27.

The next morning and a mere 100 kilometres away, Jian Ghomeshi took his seat in a downtown Toronto court to face three more charges of sexual assault.

Two formerly beloved celebrities in the midst of ugly downfalls.

Ghomeshi followed dutifully Thursday as police and his lawyers strong-armed a path through a crush of reporters, cameras thrust at his face.

Blank-faced, puffy under the eyes, hair neatly combed, he raised his arms as an officer brushed a metal detector over his light-grey suit.

A rare sighting, as one reporter said, of a man who used to be everywhere in Toronto.

Few expected Ghomeshi to show for the court date, a surprise explained when the new charges were laid. He had to sign a new bail agreement forbidding him from contacting the three new women pressing charges.

Inside Courtroom 508, Ghomeshi sat beside his lawyers, slightly hunched. While his lawyers talked, he held a faraway gaze.

Coincidentally, a floor below, activists were calling for the city to create a 24-hour drop-in centre for women and trans people, many wearing T-shirts reading, "Stop the violence against women."

"We're here at the same time as Ghomeshi," noted one protester, Zoe Dodd.

Dodd would be in court herself later in the day. She and four other women face mischief charges stemming from a November sit-in at a city housing office. They were demanding that the drop-in centre be opened.

Meanwhile, Cosby was waiting to take the stage in another Ontario city for, he might hope, another night of laughs.

French police hold nine in hunt for two brothers

Attack on newspaper.
Bulletin warns suspects should be considered 'armed and dangerous'

Frightened yet defiant, French residents held a day of mourning Thursday for 12 people slain at a Paris newspaper. French police hunted for the two heavily armed brothers suspected in the massacre, fearing they might strike again.

The two suspects should be considered "armed and dangerous," French police said in a bulletin.

Ninety people have been questioned so far in the investigation and nine people close to the two suspects — Cherif Kouachi, 32, and his brother Said Kouachi, 34 — were detained for further questioning, officials said.

Authorities extended France's maximum terror alert from Paris to the northern Picardie region, focusing on several towns that might be possible safe havens for the two suspects, Interior Minister Bernard Cazeneuve told reporters.

President Francois Hollande — joined by residents, tourists and Muslim leaders — called for tolerance after the country's worst terrorist attack in decades.

At noon, the Paris metro came to a standstill and a crowd fell silent near Notre Dame cathedral to honour Wednesday's victims.

"France has been struck directly in the heart of its capital, in a place where the spirit of liberty — and thus of resistance — breathed freely," Hollande said.

France's prime minister said the possibility of a new attack "is our main concern" and announced several overnight arrests. Tensions ran high in Paris, where 800 extra police patrolled schools, places of worship and transit hubs. Britain increased its security checks at ports and borders.

The satirical newspaper Charlie Hebdo had caricatured the Prophet Muhammad, and witnesses said the attackers claimed allegiance to al-Qaida in Yemen. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'Islamization' of Europe

Fear feeds right-wing rhetoric

A day after terror struck Paris, Europe's far-right and anti-immigrant parties pressed home the message that has fueled their resurgence: the continent's rising numbers of Muslims are dangerous.

Populist movements warning of the "Islamization" of Europe have been gaining ground in small countries like Denmark and large ones like Britain, Germany and France. The attack on satirical newspaper Charlie Hebdo could win more supporters to their cause.

Fears of precisely the kind of commando-style attack that struck the newspaper on Wednesday, killing 12 people, have risen sharply in recent months as home-grown fighters return from Syria and Iraq.

There are concerns that more mainstream Europeans will be pulled into their orbit and that mainstream parties will be tempted to parrot the hard-line rhetoric.

Journalist killings on rise, threat to free expression

The attack at Charlie Hebdo is a painful reminder that free expression — and the people who act as conduits — is under threat every day, everywhere, the head of a Canadian journalism association says.

Last year was one of the worst in history, as extremist groups started killing journalists as a public-relations tool, said Tom Henheffer, executive director of Canadian Journalists for Free Expression. Sixty-six lost their lives worldwide in 2014, either in conflict zones or elsewhere, according to Reporters Without Borders.

This year is off to an even worse start, with eight journalists among the 12 killed in the Charlie Hebdo attack — playing out in a city that typically would be considered safe.

"This Paris attack was on a higher scale when it comes to co-ordination and planning and the number of people killed," he said. "It just goes beyond anything that we've seen before. It's absolutely terrible."

Henheffer said such attacks are extremely rare in Canada and risks for journalists are very low — but attacks do happen.

Tara Singh Hayer, for example, was murdered in 1998 in Vancouver for speaking out against extremism in Sikh culture. In 2000, crime reporter Michel Auger was shot six times in the back in Montreal for his coverage of biker gangs.

Brian Smith, a Toronto sportscaster, was gunned down in a parking lot in 1995 by someone who reportedly held a grudge against the media.

The lower risk in Canada can be attributed to the country's history of tolerance, multiculturalism and integration and the media being "a little more polite and a little more culturally sensitive," Henheffer said.

Journalists killed

'Cruellest' video ever: Rice lawyer

Police shooting.

Officers restrain, cuff boy's 14-year-old sister as he bleeds from shots

A video released by the City of Cleveland shows a police officer pushing a 14-year-old girl to the ground and handcuffing her with the help of another officer soon after a third officer fatally shot her younger brother.

The grainy surveillance video shows the officers struggling with the teen before putting her in the back seat of a patrol car parked next to the where 12-year-old African-American Tamir Rice lay bleeding on the snowy ground.

Northeast Ohio Media Group is reporting that it obtained the nearly 30-minute-long video from the city on Wednesday after the city initially refused to release

it. Other media outlets were given the video Thursday.

Patrol officer Timothy Loehmann, who is white, shot Tamir in the abdomen within two seconds of a patrol car stopping near the boy on Nov. 22. He died the next day.

The new video begins with the shooting of Tamir. About 90 seconds later, Tamir's sister, whose name has not been released, runs toward her fallen brother. Loehmann's partner Frank Garmback immediately pushes her to the ground. Garmback and another officer are then shown handcuffing the struggling teen and finally placing her in the back seat of Loehmann and Garmback's patrol car.

Walter Madison, an attorney for the family, called the treatment of the 14-year-old sister "the cruellest thing I've ever seen on video."

He also criticized the officers for not providing Tamir with medical attention.

Three dead after cruise ship capsizes

A catamaran carrying dozens of foreign tourists on a pleasure cruise capsized off Costa Rica on Thursday, killing three people, emergency officials said.

The boat, which was on a day trip to the popular Tortuga (Turtle) Island, sank completely about 15 kilometres off the country's central Pacific Coast.

Private boats in the area took in passengers until rescuers arrived.

The tour operator reported that the Pura Vida Princess, a 100-foot catamaran, left Marina Los Suenos in the morning with 98 passengers and a crew of 10.

Rescuers had recovered 94 people from the shipwreck and taken them to two emergency centres on land. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Paris

Police officer killed and street sweeper injured in shooting

An assailant opened fire on a police officer on the southern edge of Paris early Thursday, killing her and injuring a nearby street sweeper before fleeing, officials and a witness said.

The attacker in the pre-dawn shooting Thursday remained at large, said French Interior Minister Bernard Cazeneuve. It was not immediately clear whether the attack was linked to the Wednesday assault on the newspaper Charlie Hebdo, in which two police officers were among the 12 dead.

In the Thursday shooting, Cazeneuve said, the officer had stopped to investigate a traffic accident when the firing started.

U.S. in a bind over Sony hack charge

North Korea blamed.
Skeptics question whether other hackers or Sony insiders could be the culprits

FBI Director James B. Comey. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

The Obama administration's extraordinary decision to point fingers at North Korea over the hacking of Sony Pictures Entertainment Inc. could lead to a courtroom spectacle in the event that charges are ultimately filed against someone without ties to the isolated country, such as a disgruntled employee or an unrelated hacker.

"Once the government says it has good reason to believe North Korea did it, then that is good reason to believe that the defendant did not do it unless the defendant was an agent of North Korea," said Jennifer Granick, director of civil liberties at the Stanford Center for Internet and Society.

U.S. officials for weeks have been emphatic in blaming North Korea for the hack attack, citing similarities to other tools developed by the country in specific lines of computer code, encryption algorithms and data deletion methods.

FBI Director James Comey told a cybersecurity conference in New York on Wednesday that the hackers "got sloppy" and mistakenly sent messages directly that could be traced to Internet addresses used exclusively by North Korea.

That hasn't stopped skeptics from challenging the government's conclusion and raising questions about whether hackers or Sony insiders could be the culprits instead of — or maybe along with — North Korea.

Comey said only the FBI has the whole picture, but the U.S. government has been hamstrung over its reluctance to disclose sensitive information yet might reveal intelligence secrets about how the U.S. secretly watches North Korea.

Given the risks in revealing evidence, the public statements were a "bold move" that could suggest the government acted in haste — or that it has a much stronger case than what's been made public, said Tor Ekeland, a New York lawyer whose clients include hackers.

"That's what makes me think they've got some smoking-gun piece of information that they haven't revealed," he said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Apple hiking prices for Canadians due to falling loonie

Apple is hiking prices in its App Store for Canadian customers, according to an email sent to software developers on Wednesday.

The unspecified price increase in Canada, Norway and European Union — triggered by falling foreign exchange rates — would take effect within 36 hours, the email said.

Netflix crackdown talk sparks debate on ethics of unblocking

Studios not happy.

But one observer feels the practice is not having an adverse effect on rights holders

LUKE SIMCOE
Metro in Toronto

In case you haven't heard, Canadians are crossing the digital border in droves and streaming U.S. content from Netflix. Most of us just want to watch our favourite shows but do we really know what's at stake when we unblock ourselves?

Hardly a new issue — a July report suggested one-third of Canadian viewers were already masking their IP addresses in order to access Netflix's American library — unblocking made headlines this week after reports that the service was cracking down on the practice.

Netflix has dismissed the rumours, saying nothing about its policies has changed. However, regardless of their veracity, the reports have sparked a debate about the merits — and ethics — of circumventing regional restrictions online.

The issue stems from the licensing agreements Netflix negotiates with rights holders and media studios. While Netflix is a global company, the right to show certain content remains tied to geography.

"Rights holders have licensed their work to be streamed by Netflix in a particular country, and the assumption is that if Netflix wants to make it available in another country, then they should be paying for that," said Michael Geist, a law professor at the University of Ottawa.

Netflix is notoriously secretive about its metrics, but some in the entertainment business worry unblocking makes their content appear less valuable than it is. Canadian users disguised as Americans could be watching hours of Trailer Park Boys, for example, but Netflix may not see the show as popular among its Canadian audience and could even choose to cancel it.

While Netflix's terms of service forbid accessing content "anywhere other than "Netflix could just easily ban people with a Canadian account from connecting to its American library. The real question is how much effort is Netflix really putting into this."

Fenwick McKelvey, Concordia University

within the country or location authorized by Netflix," industry observers have accused the streaming service of turning a blind eye to customers who log in from Toronto one minute and Seattle the next.

"Unless the backlash from rights holders reaches the point that they're unwilling to license to them, it's not clear to me that there's a huge downside for Netflix," Geist said, noting the site can attract more customers by tacitly offering their entire catalogue to anyone savvy enough to make a few Google searches.

While some studios have complained about unblocking, Geist doesn't believe the practice is having an adverse effect on rights holders.

"For the most part, it's a case where consumers are paying for something, Netflix is being paid and content providers are being paid," he said.

In Canada, Bell and Rogers are launching competing services to Netflix, and the debate around unblocking could heat up if they decide Netflix's lax enforcement constitutes unfair competition.

"They might think they have a better product than Netflix Canada but not Netflix U.S.," Geist said.

However, even the two big telcos could be reluctant to tackle unblocking head-on. Both companies are also Internet service providers and, as Geist observed, they benefit from Netflix customers shelling out for faster downloads and larger data caps.

For Fenwick McKelvey, a communications professor at Concordia University, unblocking is just the latest in a long "cat-and-mouse game" between those who own content and those trying to consume it.

"People have been putting up antennas to get American signals since the invention of radio," he said.

McKelvey said Netflix is also caught between a "download culture," in which users are accustomed to finding content they want through piracy, and more established business models.

The struggle for Netflix, then, is to be able to offer a legitimate service at a price that can compete with file-sharing.

"There's a compromise trying to be struck, and Netflix is trying to become the vehicle of that compromise," McKelvey said. "They're saying that if you pay $8 a month, then everyone's happy."

A brief history of piracy and unblocking

Cable pirates

In 1960s Canada, so-called satellite pirates performed their own version of unblocking, creating reception antennae and re-transmitting U.S. television broadcasts via cable, often for a fee.

Concert bootlegs

Throughout the late 1960s and '70s, bootleg concert recordings helped launch the careers of numerous rock-and-roll acts, including Bob Dylan and the Grateful Dead.

Home taping

"Home taping is killing music" was the slogan of a 1980s anti-piracy campaign by the British Phonographic Industry. Widely parodied, the campaign prompted the U.K. band Bow Wow Wow to release a cassette single with an empty side designed to allow fans to record their own music off the radio.

Software piracy

Concerned by users illegally copying software programs, the Software Publishers Association launched a campaign called

"Don't Copy that Floppy" in 1992. The unintentionally hilarious video was rediscovered in the 2000s and became a viral sensation on YouTube.

Music piracy

Launched in 1999, the Napster file-sharing service was short-lived but paved the way for the widespread online piracy that continues today.

VOICES

THAT JOKE ISN'T FUNNY ANY MORE (AND NEVER WAS)

THE KOHLER
REPORT

By Rebecca Kohler

"Penis: The tool used to wean and convert lesbians and virgins into useful, productive members of society." No, this is not the Merriam-Webster definition of penis, it is a "joke" found on the "Class of DDS 2015 Gentlemen" Facebook page.

If you're not 100 per cent sure what's going on with the Dalhousie Dentistry Student fiasco, here it is in brief: Thirteen fourth-year Dal dentistry students belonged to a private Facebook group. On said page, the 13 students discussed an array of topics from exams to stress to chloroforming their female classmates. So ... wait — what? Yeah. There were also polls about which female classmates the other members would like to "hate f—" etc.

Anyway, so these guys went about their business on this invitation-only FB page saying a bunch of misogynistic things, then someone leaked it, and now all hell has broken loose.

I am really, really torn on this issue. I, too, have said stupid things in my lifetime. I, too, am a member of a private Facebook group, and while it's mostly just me and my girlfriends confessing that we like Taylor Swift and talking about whether or not we think Adnan from Serial did it, I'm sure I've said things in there I wouldn't want other people to see.

So, on one hand, I respect the idea that private thoughts can be harmless.

On the other hand, I'm really upset that the "gentlemen" would even want to joke this way in private. If they had polls about which classmate was hottest or who had the prettiest eyes, that could still be deemed as sexist, but it wouldn't be disturbing.

When group members discussed the possibility that there had been a leak, one of them posted, "I also want to know I can say whoever I want to HATEF—and know some guy isn't going to go running and tell the girls." Why do you want to "hate f—" anyone? What does that even mean and whatever happened to french kissing? Could we start there and then find out if we hate each other, the way a normal relationship progresses?

When I first heard about this case I was like, "OK, so they're idiots, that doesn't mean they should be expelled." But the more I read and thought — incidentally, I do a lot of thinking while I brush my teeth — the angrier I got.

The current plan of action at Dalhousie is to resolve the situation through restorative justice, meaning everyone talks it out and then awkwardly hugs or something. But imagine being one of the women mentioned in the posts and having to sit across from one of the "gentlemen" as he apologized to you. Aside from that experience feeling like an emotional root canal, would you really believe that a man who suggests having sex with a woman until his "stress is relieved or the girl is unconscious", is going to apologize and mean it? I'd bet a gold tooth that as soon as the guy's out of there, he'll find a private place to tell one of his buddies how good your tits looked while he was expressing his remorse.

But if restorative justice doesn't cut it, what does? Should they all be expelled? Well, did they ALL post? Did they ALL say terrible things? Even if they said those things, does it warrant expulsion? Part of me thinks yes, if only to set an example. Women don't deserve to be thought of or spoken about that way just for existing. WHEN IS THAT GOING TO SINK IN? Another part thinks no, because maybe that will fuel the fire amongst other sexist idiots, "See what those bitch dentistry students did?"

As a comedian, I believe that any and every topic is open for joke fodder as long as it's really funny and makes a good point that helps move society forward. Aside from the chauvinism, the most shameful aspect of the Facebook page jokes is the fact that they're hacky and derivative — they look like they were made by a sociopath in 1950. Let's hope their dental practices are more progressive than their senses of humour.

Maybe we could all save ourselves some pain by addressing these issues from the get-go. Start teaching first-graders that boys and girls are different, but both are good, and explain why. Then keep teaching that in second grade and third and ... Because, while the DDS 2015 Gentlemen have spent the past 3-1/2 years learning how to clean teeth and deal with halitosis, they spent the previous 25 learning from someone, somewhere, that women don't deserve the same respect as men.

Happy face/Sad face

From dashed romance notions to officers wearing diapers, Metro weighs in on the news that made headlines this week:

RYAN GOSLING IS A LIAR

In a big blow to the notion that romance as depicted by Hollywood has anything to do with reality, bestselling author and screenwriter Nicholas Sparks has announced he is separating from his wife of 25 years. Sparks is best-known for writing romantic drama The Notebook, a.k.a. the main reason why men resent Ryan Gosling (remember this scene below? sigh).

MOOSE STEWARDS

Toques off to three men who saved a moose that had been buried by an avalanche in Alaska. The Good Samaritans were snowmobiling when they saw a snout sticking out of the snow and realized an animal was buried alive. After 10 minutes of digging they were able to free the moose, which appeared unharmed and ran off.

COUNTERFEIT FAL

Perhaps the jaw-dropper here isn't that someone had the gall to photocopy two sides of a 20-pound note and staple it together. The jaw-dropper here is that a shop-keeper in Manchester accepted it as currency. It was handed over to police, who have been tight-lipped about naming the shop to save it the ridicule.

WE WON! WOOHOO!

High-fives all around for Canada's junior men's hockey team, which brought the gold medal back to Canada this week after a five-year hiatus. Canada beat Russia 5-4 in the IIHF World Junior Championship gold-medal game in Toronto.

PATRON SAINT OF BLADDERS NEEDED

What would Jesus do? We're going to go ahead and assume he would NOT make 2,000 traffic officers wear diapers on the job while Pope Francis visits the Philippines. While authorities assure the directive was "well-received" by staff, we think this is one "golden rule" that's meant to be broken.

Led by a higher power to play King

Divine casting. British actor David Oyelowo, who stars as the civil rights leader in Selma, had a premonition he would get the role

"I like to think of myself as a good actor," says David Oyelowo, "but Martin Luther King, I ain't."

The 38-year-old British actor plays the venerated civil rights leader in Selma, a dramatic retelling of King's 1965 Selma-to-Montgomery voting rights march.

It's a stirring performance that has already earned him a Golden Globe nomination as best actor in a drama. He admits he wasn't a natural fit for the part — "I would never have cast me in this role, a British actor, having not done much work in Hollywood" — but the film's producer Oprah Winfrey (who also has a heart-wrenching cameo) said, "I can see King in you."

The actor, best known for his work on the British TV show MI-5, told an audience at the AFI he always felt like he'd play King at some point. "Very soon after my wife and I moved to this country, I was told from above that I would play this role on the 24th of July, 2007. I couldn't believe it, so I wrote it down."

With help from his higher power as well as Oprah, director Ava DuVernay, research and a weight gain of 30 pounds — eat lasagna late at night, he advises — Oyelowo found the character and won the blessing of King's daughter Bernice. "It was huge for me to bridge that gap between the production and the family," Oyelowo told Selma is a snapshot of a particular time. Instead of trying to cover the width and breadth of Martin Luther King's life and accomplishments, director Ava DuVernay hones the story down to one seminal event: King's march from Selma to Montgomery.

Ala. It's an effective and uncluttered approach that brings one of the biggest events of the civil rights movement into sharp focus. The movie is helmed by a gobsmackingly good performance from David Oyelowo as King. He's righteous and fiery, but plays King like a man, not an emblem. It is career-making work ably buttressed by supporting players Henry G. Sanders, Oprah Winfrey and Tom Wilkinson.

One of Bernice's brothers, Martin Luther King III, has called Selma, "a very emotional experience," and hopes that the film's success will spur Hollywood interest in his father's life, work and legacy.

Steven Spielberg is reportedly working on a biopic and a new German film called Schwarzkopf BRD features King in a study of racial politics in Berlin.

In more traditional films, the civil rights leader has been portrayed by everyone from Paul Winfield, who earned an Emmy nomination for his performance in King, a three-hour TV miniseries, to Jeffrey Wright in Boycott, to son Dexter King in The Rosa Parks Story.

Dexter and his sister Yolanda collaborated with filmmakers Rob Smiley and Vincenzo Trippetti on the most unique retelling of their father's life. Combining animation and historical footage, Our Friend, Martin is a time-travel story about a student sent back in time to meet King at significant moments in his life. The hour-long film is difficult to find but features wonderful vocal performances from Angela Bassett, LeVar Burton, Danny Glover, Oprah Winfrey, Whoopi Goldberg and Dexter as his father at age 34.

Golden Globes shoulda, woulda, coulda

Awards predictions are dumb. Except when screamingly obvious, no one has a clue what will win, and such coverage is blatant clickbait. Not that mere opinion pieces are much more useful, but at least you get to talk about the quality of people's work — and point to those who may be flying under the radar. Metro's Matt Prigge, Ned Ehrbar and Lisa Weidenfeld pick who/what they hope will win Golden Globes this Sunday, and who/what would win out of those not nominated

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Best actress, drama

Should win: Julianne Moore, Still Alice Oh man, is this the saddest movie: one where Moore at her most personable suffers mental deterioration via early Alzheimer's.

Should have been nominated: Scarlett Johansson, Under the Skin ScarJo was definitely on fire this year, but she was never more movie star-ish and fearless as she was a chillingly blank-faced alien seductress. — M.P.

Best actor, drama

Should win: Jake Gyllenhaal, Nightcrawler There's a lot of strong competition here, but the one-time Donnie Darko impresses most for his chilling (and very, very funny) embodiment of a driven freelancer sociopath.

Should have been nominated: John Lithgow, Love is Strange Atypically cast as recognizably human, the great ham and villain used very little to convey deep recesses of pain and longing as his character was separated from his husband (Alfred Molina). — M.P.

Best actor, comedy or musical

Should win: Ralph Fiennes, The Grand Budapest Hotel Sure, everyone's all about Michael Keaton in Birdman, but Fiennes' finicky, philandering concierge easily outshines him.

Should have been nominated: Jesse Eisenberg, The Double Maybe it's not fair competition, since he technically plays two roles, but Eisenberg deserves some recognition for this gem — and for the realization that he's a lot more attractive as a jerk. — N.E.

Best actress, comedy or musical

Should win: Emily Blunt, Into the Woods In an overstuffed ensemble that includes Meryl Streep, Blunt more than holds her own. And it gives me a chance to mention her equally awesome work in Edge of Tomorrow. You really should see Edge of Tomorrow.

Should have been nominated: Jenny Slate, Obvious Child Slate should have gotten some Globes love just for starring in an abortion comedy. Isn't that like catnip to the Hollywood Foreign Press? Whatever, she's wonderful in it. — N.E.

Best TV series, drama

Should win: The Good Wife Procedurals are not supposed to evolve too much as they age. Luckily, this is not a concept this show is familiar with. It's still one of the best dramas on TV, and its characters continue to grow in organic, compelling ways.

Should have been nominated: The Americans Yep, this is on the list twice for "should have beens." We're sorry (but not really), we're just still struggling with the Hollywood Foreign Press nominating Downton Abbey instead of it. — L.W.

Best actress in a TV series, drama

Should win: Viola Davis, How to Get Away with Murder

Look, if your show transforms Thursday night TV, we think you deserve some credit for it. Plus, we're pretty sure Viola Davis is never not fantastic.

Should have been nominated: Tatiana Maslany, Orphan Black Which role out of the near-dozen that she plays on the show is she best in? All of them. Awards shows need to get over their distaste of so-called "genre" shows. — L.W.

Best actor in a TV series, drama

Should win: Dominic West, The Affair Did you know the Emmys and Golden Globes never recognized West for The Wire? Let's fix that. His performance in this mystery/thriller/drama/romance is a good place to start.

Should have been nominated: Matthew Rhys, The Americans If nothing else, Rhys' wig work is phenomenal. The show skipped the concept of the sophomore slump, and Rhys (and under-recognized co-star Keri Russell) was a big reason why. — L.W.

Viola Davis
GETTY IMAGES

Best actress in a TV series, musical or comedy

Should win: Gina

Rodriguez, Jane the Virgin

We'd love to see an upset in this category over the more established stars, much like Brooklyn Nine-Nine had last year. And Rodriguez, an unknown before this show, is making a pretty big splash.

Should have been nominated: Kate McKinnon, Saturday Night Live The show has been through some upheaval lately, as longtime stars left, and newcomers had trouble fitting in. But McKinnon is a reliably confident, perpetually offbeat performer, and often the best part of otherwise forgettable episodes. — L.W.

Best actor in a TV series, musical or comedy

Should win: Jeffrey Tambor, Transparent This would be a first: a man winning for playing a woman. But Tambor, an always welcome presence, is doing some of the best work of his career as Maura Pfefferman on the Amazon original.

Should have been nominated: Andre Braugher, Brooklyn Nine-Nine OK, technically, he's a supporting actor on the show, but the Globes doesn't do that award. Braugher is surrounded by a bunch of goofy improvisers, and is still regularly the funniest part of the show, despite his more serious dramatic background. — L.W.

Casting. Actress from Arrow joins Affleck-fronted feature The Accountant

Cynthia Addai-Robinson, who plays Amanda Waller on the CW series Arrow, has joined the cast of The Accountant, the upcoming feature from Gavin O'Connor.

The actress will play a Treasury Department analyst, according to Variety, and will share the screen with Ben Affleck, Anna Kendrick (Into the Woods), J.K. Simmons (Whiplash) and Jon Berenthal (The Walking Dead, Fury).

An assassin thriller, The Accountant focuses on a mild-mannered accountant who moonlights as a hit man. Ben Affleck signed on in the title role last October, followed by Kendrick, Simmons and Berenthal the following month.

The feature is due to enter production in the near future, most likely as soon as Affleck wraps up on the set of Batman V Superman: Dawn of Justice.

The actor will then return to the director's chair to helm his fourth feature, Live by Night, which is due to open in the U.S. on October 7, 2016.

No release dates have been announced for The Accountant.

Meryl Streep ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Streep defends Crowe's ageist view, Chastain not so much

So that thing Russell Crowe said about older actresses still being able to find work, even if they're honest about their age?

Yeah, naturally, women are reacting.

First, Meryl Streep came out in support of Crowe, saying his words had been "misappropriated," which is a fun word.

"He was talking about himself," Streep said. "I agree with him. It's good to live within the place where you are."

I'm not going to try to unpack that statement because, yikes! But I will challenge Ms. Streep on the assertion that Crowe was talking about himself, since all his quotes were literally about women — including Streep herself, whom he cites as a positive example. So at least her support is understandable.

Less supportive? Jessica Chastain.

While speaking with reporters at the National Board of Review Awards in

New York, Chastain didn't mince words.

"Russell keeps getting his foot stuck in his mouth," she said. "There are some incredible actresses in their 50s and 60s that are not getting opportunities in film, and for someone to say that there are plenty of roles for women that age, (that) is not someone who's going to the movie theatre."

You just going to sit there and take that, Russell?

Pit-Lo? J.Pit? PB&J? Or how about Bull-Lope?

Everyone knows the first step to successfully wooing a woman in this modern age is telling anyone who will listen about how much you dig her — and revealing your ideas for a couple nickname.

At least that's what Pit-bull has been doing, telling everyone except Jennifer Lopez about how much he digs Jennifer Lopez.

"He's always considered her to be his ideal type — curvy, talented and Latina," a source tells Life & Style, quoting what I assume is on Lopez's business cards.

"He's never made a move because she's always been linked with someone — first Marc Anthony, then Casper Smart. Now he's telling pals that he and J.Lo could be the next Brangelina. He's even come up with their mash-up name: Pit-Lo.

Aim high, buddy.

Bake away those winter blahs

Ultra Moist Banana Bread. This delicious version features a secret ingredient for extra soft texture

RICARDO COOKS
Chef Ricardo
Ricardo Magazine

When the weather gets a little bit wild, we love nothing more than cooking up something warm, sweet and comforting.

On the menu a penultimate classic: A beautiful banana bread (extra-moist thanks to special ingredient coconut milk, which you won't even taste).

Once a can of coconut milk is opened, you can freeze leftovers. If you don't have it on hand, replace the coconut milk and lime juice with 1/2 cup (125 ml) of sour cream.

1. With the rack in the middle position, preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Butter a 9 x 5-inch (23 x 13 cm) loaf pan (a 6-cup/1.5 litre capacity pan) and line with a strip of parchment

Ingredients

- 1 1/2 cups (210 g) unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp baking powder
- 1 tsp baking soda
- 1 1/4 cups (325 g) mashed ripe bananas (3-4 bananas)
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) coconut milk
- 1 tbs lime juice
- 1/2 cup (115 g) unsalted butter, softened
- 1 cup (210 g) sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 tsp vanilla extract

This recipe serves eight to 10 people. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM paper, letting it hang over both sides.

2. In a bowl, combine the flour, baking powder and baking soda. Set aside.

3. In another bowl, combine the bananas, coconut milk and lime juice. Set aside.

4. In a third bowl, cream the butter and sugar with an electric mixer. Add egg and vanilla and beat until smooth. At low speed, add the dry ingredients alternately with the banana mixture.

5. Pour into the loaf pan. Bake for about 1 hour or until a toothpick inserted in the centre of the cake comes out clean.

6. Let cool on a wire rack before removing from the pan and slicing.

I'll admit I didn't know much about sustainable wine growing until I finally visited New Zealand last fall.

Sustainability sounds so complicated, it wasn't until I started talking with kiwis about their commitments to protect their land that pieces of the puzzle started fitting together.

When it comes to New Zealand's winemakers, 94 per cent have adopted sustainable vineyard practices "by reducing the use of chemicals, energy, water and packaging, and wherever possible reusing and recycling materials and waste." It's all about monitoring, measuring and trying to reduce their impact on their surroundings so future generations can continue to produce high-quality wines from the local geography.

Sustainability is one of the core values of Auckland-based Villa Maria Estate, and its 2013 Private Bin Sauvignon Blanc ($16.95 - $19.99) is a bright white with light gooseberry fruit and herbaceous highlights produced in the South Island's famous Marlborough region.

Try with scallops, mussels and salty goat cheese.

Stampeders re-sign Canada receiver

The Calgary Stampeders re-signed Canadian receiver Simon Charbonneau-Campeau on Thursday.

The 26-year-old St-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Que., native was scheduled to become a free agent next month. Calgary acquired Charbonneau-Campeau from Hamilton Tiger-Cats on Jan. 6, 2014.

He appeared in 14 regular-season games for Calgary and established career highs with 13 catches for 233 yards and scored his first career touchdown Sept. 6 against Edmonton. Charbonneau-Campeau added two receptions for 74 yards in the West final and had a catch for 28 yards in the Stampeders' 20-16 Grey Cup win over Hamilton.

"I'm pleased that Simon has chosen to remain with the Stampeders," Calgary head coach/GM John Hufnagel said in a statement.

"He was an excellent addition to the team in 2014 as he made some very important catches and was a great asset on special teams."

McEwen sets gaze on getting over hump

Curling. Winnipeg rink on a roll this season, seeks win over Stoughton at provincials to advance to Brier

This could be the year Mike McEwen's curling team shakes the label of the best team never to play in a Brier.

McEwen, third B.J. Neufeld, second Matt Wozniak and lead Denni Neufeld won six of eight events in the first half of the season, including wins over Olympic champion Brad Jacobs in the finals of both The National in November and the Canada Cup in December.

McEwen's Fort Rouge Curling Club rink from Winnipeg is running away with the No. 1 ranking on the World Curling Tour (WCT), with $114,000 in prize money so far.

A team at a crossroads in February after losing its fourth provincial final in five years — and falling one win short again of a trip to the Canadian men's championship — decided to remain intact for an eighth season and reinvent itself.

"Very slowly we kind of gathered our thoughts and decided what we had together as a foursome was still very strong and important, but we had kind of lost our way as far as growing as teammates and as athletes," McEwen said Thursday at the Continental Cup in Calgary.

"We made a commitment to find how to do that again."

They've been a solid team on the WCT since their formation in 2007 and were among the eight Canadian men's teams who qualified for the Sochi Olympic trials.

But winning Manitoba and representing the province at the Brier means beating world and Canadian champion Jeff Stoughton.

"His approach has made us really change how we think and how we operate as a team," McEwen explained.

"We're very much more supportive and understanding than we ever have been. We're more of a team now than we ever have been. We got a little individualistic at times, and it hurt us."

The Manitoba provincial men's championship is Feb. 4 to 8 in Brandon. The winner advances to the Tim Hortons Brier from Feb. 28 to March 8 in Calgary at Scotiabank Saddledome. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Carolina QB vs. league's No. 1 D

NFL. Panthers' Cam Newton 0-3 against Seattle Seahawks entering NFC divisional playoff game

Cam Newton must find a way to beat his biggest nemesis for the Carolina Panthers to advance to the NFC championship game.

The fourth-year quarterback is 0-3 in his career and has struggled to find the end zone against the Seattle Seahawks, Carolina's opponent in Saturday night's divisional playoff game. Newton has led only one touchdown drive in those three losses to the Seahawks.

He's barely completed 50 per cent of his passes and is averaging just 145 yards passing per game. He's been sacked eight times with three turnovers, including two fumbles. Newton has also been limited to 104 yards on the ground and has not scored a touchdown rushing against Seattle.

"I can't really put a finger on it," Newton said of his struggles against the Seahawks. "They have great players and they're coached extremely well."

Seattle coach Pete Carroll said the Seahawks haven't done anything special against Newton. "We've just tried to play football and hold on — and we've been able to get that done," Carroll said.

This will be Newton's first time playing in Seattle, so battling crowd noise will certainly add to Newton's challenges.

Panthers coach Ron Rivera said he believes Newton will be fine as long as he doesn't try to force the action against the league's No. 1-ranked defence.

Rivera said the Panthers will need to perform better in the red zone to have a chance — something they've struggled with most of the season and in past games against Seattle — and not turn the ball over.

Carolina settled for three field-goal attempts last Saturday in a 27-16 wild-card win against Arizona and also had three turnovers, two by Newton. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ray Rice scandal

NFL should have sought more info, says investigator

The NFL failed to investigate the Ray Rice case properly, former FBI director Robert S. Mueller said in a report that also said he found no evidence the league received a video of the Ravens running back knocking out his fiancée in a casino elevator.

"The NFL should have done more with the information it had and should have taken additional steps to obtain all available information about the Feb. 15 incident," Mueller said in a statement after releasing his 96-page report.

Mueller said he can find no evidence the league received the video showing Rice striking his fiancée before it was published online in September. A law enforcement official showed The Associated Press videos of the incident and said he mailed a DVD to NFL headquarters in April.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

Anyone who thinks they can get you to believe something that is untrue does not know you. Pretend to agree, turn around at the last moment and tell them to get lost.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You'll be dealing with important people today. The trick is to get them to make things happen for you. If you get the chance to impress them, take it.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

If you are having second thoughts about something you recently agreed to there is still time to change your mind.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You want to make a good impression on employers but you also want to tell the truth — and you may not be able to do both. Be honest today.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Take no notice if a friend tries to terrify you with tales of what might go wrong. According to the planets things will go your way over the next 24 hours and those that don't can't hurt you.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You may not agree with someone's opinions but you support their right to express them — which will, of course, bring you into conflict with people who believe that free speech is not sacred.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Everyone has limits and if you stay within them nothing will go wrong. But if you think you can do anything you like, you could make a fool of yourself.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

If you allow personal feelings to influence your decisions today at least one of those decisions will cause you grief. Stick to the facts and avoid wishful thinking.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

According to the planets a colleague is envious of your popularity and success and would like nothing better than to bring you down a notch. That can only happen if you don't stay alert for challenges.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Someone in a position of power isn't convinced you have what it takes to do a certain task, but you'll delight in proving them wrong. Come tomorrow they will be your biggest fan.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

If someone wiser than you offers advice listen and think about doing what they say, because it could save you a fortune. You know a lot but you can't possibly know it all.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Everyone wants to please you. But don't let it blind you to the fact that you may have to make some unpopular calls.
